1. In October 1954, a delegation of the German Academy for Agricultural Sciences stayed in Moscow for 10 days to visit the All-Union-Exhibition of the Soviet agriculture. The purpose of this visit was to establish close contact with the agricultural section of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. 25X1
2. Head of the delegation was Professor Erwin Plachy, director of the Academy for Agricultural Sciences in Berlin. Other delegates were scientists, members of the academy and professors of the boards of agricultural studies on GDR universities.
3. The exhibition was arranged according to countries which exhibited their domestic products and offered their national dishes in attached restaurants.
4. The members of the delegation were billeted in the Intourist Hotel and were, allegedly, permitted to move freely in Moscow. Except during the railroad trip, they were also permitted to take pictures.
